

Global Strategic Energy Sourcing

Proactive Sourcing, Contract, and Performance Management

Global organizations face daunting complexity in energy procurement. Market-specific energy price fluctuation, renewable energy and carbon emissions targets, plus diverse, constantly changing global utility business models combine to overstretch the available staff resources of even the largest international operators.

Effectively managing energy procurement opportunities, costs, risk tolerance, and contracts across a global portfolio requires the combination of region-specific intelligence, easy access to centrally organized information, and robust reporting. Few organizations have the expertise, staff bandwidth, and technology to meet these requirements on a global stage.

Leveraging the ENGIE Insight Energy and Sustainability Management Platform, Strategic Energy Sourcing provides a single system of record for clients to navigate the complexity of energy procurement activity across global portfolios. ENGIE Insight clients save time and money by outsourcing energy supply procurement and management to dedicated experts with region-specific energy market knowledge, backed by more than two decades in the energy and sustainability management arena.

Holistic Strategy, Market-Specific Approach

Strategic Energy Sourcing from ENGIE Insight delivers:

- A structured buying process that enables market-specific energy procurement decisions based on competitive price transparency that fits your budget, risk tolerance and strategy.
- Close management of variable price and volume contracts that capture and exploit market-specific price opportunities.
- Ongoing contract reporting and management of supplier issues to support overall program consistency and stakeholder transparency requirements.
- Global procurement information via the ENGIE Insight Energy and Sustainability Management Platform's Contract Manager function. Clients access contract status summary reports (at a glance visual presentation of upcoming expirations), hedge summary reports, and detailed global contract data. Additionally, a document library provides centralized access to supplemental global energy procurement documentation.

Regional energy market knowledge backed by over two decades of data and experience.

“ENGIE Insight has helped us to achieve significant cost savings ... this will make a real contribution to our bottom line and also gives us security of energy supply at very competitive rates.”

Contract Risk Mitigation

Constant energy market price volatility exposes global organizations to increased financial risk. Strategic Energy Sourcing solutions ensure the regular review of procurement opportunities against the client’s overall energy strategy and tactical plan in each market, informing ongoing contract review and future procurement activity managed by ENGIE Insight’s expert market teams. In deregulated markets, forward price analysis and reporting serves to inform your budget and further reduce uncertainty where price volatility can prove most consequential.

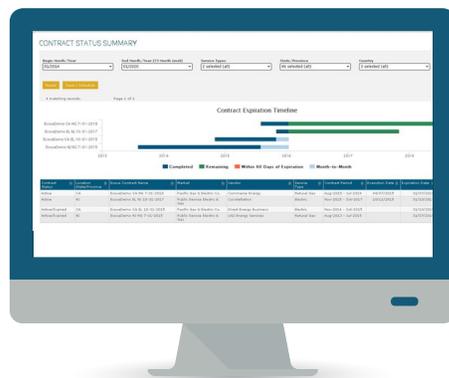

Portfolio-Wide Reporting and Monitoring

Leveraging contract data, market-specific price intelligence, and historic utility invoices, ENGIE Insight builds the foundation of data that provides the insight required to take action on your energy procurement decisions and ensure they’re tracking to your strategy. A visual reporting dashboard helps communicate region-specific pricing and market trends, as well as your portfolio positions to key stakeholders. Convenient access to contract images and related data is presented in the contracts portal. Finally, supplier performance management ensures accurate pricing at the site level and support to manage resolution of contract and invoicing issues.

With Strategic Energy Sourcing, organizations are relieved of the expense and administrative burdens associated with energy procurement and risk management across global portfolios.
